It is worse than idle to ascribe this great political revolution to fraud and bribery. It is a libel on the character and sovereignty of the People, and on their capacity for self-government, and an insult to the public understanding. The causes that have wrought out such a change in the public sentiment are sufficiently apparent to all intelligent men. The most prominent cause may be traced to the financial policy of the Government, and to the doctrines introduced into the as all just Governments is, for the benefit of their dependence was upon her favors. the governed, to secure the rights of all, protect the great interests of the country, and promote been begging at the door of the bank offering this late publication. "The course of the Administration produced old order of things, under which this country enjoyed a degree of prosperity unexampled in the history of nations. The people wanted a more settled and stable policy in the fiscal action of the Government, and more respect for the popular will in the councils of the nation. They wanted what Gen. HARRISON is pledged to, one town of Potosi, in the county of Washington, to Presidential term, and a better regard for the a certain point in Jefferson County. freedom of political opinion. They wanted repose from the intense political action to which the country has been for years subjected, by the agitation of financial questions affecting all the great interests of society.

The last Democrat comes up to the sticking point. and makes allusion to the Democratic Meeting advertised for next Monday. It hopes for a "large meeting," and trusts that no "true hearted and whele-souled Democrat" will be found to "deny the faith." What say you Messrs. Register and Receiver! Your wishes aside, I have taken my seat to write. Our town, as you will readily imagine, is now thrown on its own resources, whereby to entertain its citizens, but as single blessedness, and carried a face that clearly we have as tolerable a reliance in that respect as bespoke, that our neighboring villages, we shall not complain, terial to prop "languid spirits."

You have learned, ere this, that on Monday last we celebrated the triumph of our cause. The Legislature of our state adjourned on Sat. spectful to the other party—so much so, that urday last sine die. Much to the surprise of many of the "well balanced" of them have seen fit to compliment our discretion. About 11 and felicity of expression, the speeches of LEOS ARD CLARK, and BIRGH, were eminently respectable. It was amusing to witness the very apparent chagrin of the prominent Loco Focos, who had attended for the purpose of taking notes of the proceedings, and thus to manufacture capital out of which to reproach our friends, but i was "no go." So well were the speeches re ceived by all parties, the President of our Bank has esteemed it necessary to declare hostility to the new Administration-no matter what line of his late publication. If you have not, you ought to get hold of it. It sustains all his former reputation for vigor of thought and of expression. You will perceive that he is still vivid and forcible, both in language and meaning, and his occasional extravagance indicates that he has yet a warm temperament, a fully sufficient confidence in his own opinions, and some accuse heretofore, he has laid himself liable to the charge of indefiniteness and obscurity, which suggested the suspicion that he did not himself see clearly what he wished to say, and thus frequently wrapped up his thoughts in glittering clouds; but no such charge will lay against his late production. He is dead against the new administration! It is to be hoped the old gentleman will relax much of the rigor of his opposition-else the coming together of two planets of such magnitude as himself and the administra. tion, might result in imminent injury to the country! The speaking over, a large portion of the company repaired to Marley's, "where the

" There is a gentle element, and man. May breathe it with a calm unruffled soul." Well, be it so. I can only say that but few, any of our company realized its influence or its truth,-for however gentle their element, there was too much impulse for calmness. At 8 o'clock, all were on their "mirth and dance intent,"with neither "sorrow in their song, nor winter in their year," sweet sentiment was passing 'to and fro,' and if perchance one "lacked for fact, 'twas more than paid in fancy." Among the brilliants might be seen, one with

And the majesty of thought,"and so on it would have been to the end of a long chapter, had my eye been able to compass more than the two sets in my vicinity,-and after this, was no longer myself sufficiently, to be interested by the most ample merit. Many of our married ladies were with us, and exhibited quite as much of the "nonparell of pretty face and queen like step" as you could have desired; but they are off the carpet. They are the evergreens of the day; -a bachelor takes more delight in speaking of the roses. In promenading the room, it was gratifying to look an such of the young fair as have not entirely "set out,"—their air, address, in short, every thing indicating

What shall be said of that set of "fixed figures" -the Old Bachelors? We had many, many o them with us, and wherever eye could be placed might be seen one "rising on the wintry world o letters," and using every effort to "please, sur-prise, instruct, and astonish" some sweet auditor there might be seen one of "lengthened term of service" and, as if envious of keeping up "ole style," dressed in rather ancient habit. your eye on such a one, his look, jesture, in fact his every appearance indicated that, on looking on some of the gayer of his tribe, and then on himself, he felt.

their joy would have been made up, and without it, the last link in their chain of happiness was forever broken.

Another set, quite in contrast, might be seen expressing "No memory to wring our brow,

No hopelessness at heart;"while a third class were in all the ecstacy that life is heir to. They had reached their acme of delight, and seemed to place reliance on the "kindly words of trust in days gone by,"-each countenance expressing "My heart is with its early dream."

The fourth and last, though small in number were rendered rather a potent mark, from their peculiarity of situation. Their story seemed to be "___the first fresh love

As all true lovers admit there is "an affection which no stain of earth can darken," I can but delight in reciprocating the feelings and sym pathies of such as hold on to their "first fresh love," and hope ere long, "a chain of kindred taste may fasten mind to mind." As a desire to quit the dance gradually un veiled itself, a number of ladies formed them selves into a kind of "breast-work," and chanted tion rather than from observation. In his essays in most beautiful strains a Tippecanoe song, to the tune of "O, 'tis my delight," &c.
